Steck Vaughn/ Harcourt Achieve (2006)	Vocabulary Advantage for Life Science and Biology	Vivian Bernstein, et al	2007	6 (6-12)	1419018868	R
	Note: Adopted as "Resource Only". Correlates 100% to vocabulary standards. Approved as Science resource. Key Features: Builds the academic and content-area vocabulary students need to comprehend basal textbooks. The program provides in-depth, specific instruction in three key areas: foundational content-area vocabulary, explicit vocabulary skills instruction and the language of testing. The instructional model offers multiple encounters with the words. Teachers will introduce new words and explain/model the focus strategy. Students will practice the focus strategy using two high-interest reading passages. Targets a variety of skills and strategies to help students with their content-area coursework. These skills and strategies include: building associations with word anchors; using word study skills such as affixes and roots; using parts of speech and multiple meanings; using synonyms, antonyms, and comparisons and contrasts; and using specific context clues like in-text definitions, examples and descriptions.
