The place I would like to visit the most is Area 51. It is the most interesting sounding place to me I think that it would be so awesome because most ~~pe op~~ people have not been there. If I could go I would have to see the aliens. Now I would realy like to see if there was a real space ship that crashed in Roswell, New Mexico. See, most people would like to go to france or paris or Japan but I want to go ~~sam where~~ somwhere where ~~I can~~ ~~None~~ No wone elese has gone. I want to see whats in there.

Have you ever been snowboarding or skiing? Well, Tubing is much more different. At Bogus you do all of this. I have been to bogus and it's cold but ausome. I am going to tell you about tubing, snowboarding, and skiing in Bogus.

First, I am going to tell you about tubing. When you tube down the hill you are in a tube with a bottom. Some times the people that push you down spin you. When you get at the bottom you ride a special elevator up. Watch for a snow cave when you go up.

Second, I am going to tell you about snowboading. Snow boarding looks easy but it's harder than it seems.

Australia

Kangaroos and koalas are remarkable mammals, or so I've heeded. These bizarre animals only exist in the beautiful continent of Australia! That is why I want to visit this conspicuous continent.

First, Australia is not only outstanding, but it is also perplexing. The Aussie's accents only compose a portion of this. Even though their accents are eccentric, they are still impressive. Another bizarre statement is that Australia is the only continent that is a country. It has significantly large and significantly tiny cities within it.

The scenery in Australia is probably stunning. Australia's sunset may be multihued with a tint of compacted purple haze. You may hear the screeches of the native animals as they bustle through trees that rustle in the wind.

There are also remarkable landmarks to visit. One of them is the Great Barrier Reef.

In here, there are tropical fish that whirl in and out of the pronged, enchanting coral.

Statements such as these may get you convinced to stop by Australia. They sure have me begging to go there.

Laos!

Laos is a country that has majestic jungles and wonderful people. The Mekong River that flows through Laos is like a snake, creating a border to seperate them from Thailand. I am half Laos and I want to learn more about my family living over there, its people, culture, hirtorical landmarks, and possibly more!

"It all started twenty nine years ago, when our family fled from Laos to America after the Vietnam War," my dad said. Ever since my dad told me about how he lived in Laos and then came to America, I have been urging to learn more about how life is in Laos. He told me how they built houses, made clothes, got food and a lot more interesting facts. The best thing about having parents from a different country is how their childhood experiences were different and how their lifestyle was unique.

My extended family on my grandfather's side still lives in the midst of Laos. I have no idea how they look, act, or what they sound like. I'm always wondering if I have second, third, or even fourth cousins living in Laos wondering how life is in America. My dad said that Laos is a very poor country, so when I get a chance to send money, I always do. My main goal is to ~~learn~~ ~~and~~ meet my family in Laos.

My family is part of the Lao Theung tribe. There are four different ethnic tribes in Laos. I want to learn about all of the tribes and learn how their cultures are different. The last thing I would do in Laos would be to tour the famous Buddhist temple. As you may know, Laos's main religion is Buddhism. In the temple, is a solid gold shrine of a Buddha named Pra Keo. I've seen many pictures of it and it's absolutely beautifull Laos is filled with authentic items and interesting facts, which is one of the reasons why I want to go there!

Laos and my family living over there is like half of me that's missing. Although I haven't seen them or met them, I'm going to keep on researching ~~on~~ them and Laos also. My dad said that we're probably going to Laos in two years, so when I arrive in Laos and step ~~on~~ off of that airplane, I'm going to yell, "Laos, here I am!"

My Cabin in McCall

In all places I've been to, the best was McCall in winter. My grandperents have a three storie cabin. We have the biggest driveway youvie ever seen. The driveway is made of gravel, and mud, plus if you go up in the best hill to sled down. That nice fluffy blanket of snow it is perfect. The drive way is pretty steep so it take someone to direct to make sure you don't hit a spot in the ice. It takes four wheel drive to get up but soon to be worth it.

After getting unpacked I usually go up to the loft, wich ~~it~~ is the highest point of the cabin. In the loft we have a Phoose ball table, T.v. and a ton of board games. Poker and Texas hold-em are one of the big games we play. ~~tot~~ We have a pot of ten dollars, and everyone bets a couple dollars. One time at a family reunion we had a pot of 240$. I got to the final table but sadly lost.

But my favorite thing to do is ≠ sleding, snowball fights, and building snow forts. When you sled you get up to about twenty-five miles an hour, depending on wich sled you use. My favorite sled is the Rocket, it is a green and purple speed demon! ~~yo~~ You are supposed to sit down but I like to ride it like a snowboard. Snow forts are fun that is if you had someone to play with! I like putting emergence exits and entrances on my snow fort. I don't know how much it snowed but I hope it snows ~~deap~~ double this year.
