FINAL

The blazing Sun is beating down on my back as I delicately pick my way across the brisk stream. I grunt in surprise as the Soft Sand dropped off beneath me and I was plunged under the icy cold water. Freezing shock hit me as my head flew under the water. I surfaced finally and felt the blood pounding in my ears, the warm Arizona sun quickly dried me off, leaving my hair damp and turned to dark brown.

Arizona is warm all year round, beautiful and rarely Snows which is why if I could go anywhere in the world I would choose Arizona.

First of all, Arizona's radiant sun shines year-round. I love the warmth of Arizona, it is never ending even once the Sun sinks down behind the jagged mountains its almost as if a trace of the Sun's warmth is still there as the indigo sky replaces the ~~baby~~ baby blue sky.

Secondly, Arizona is beautiful. Most people think Arizona is all desert which lures them into believing that Arizona is ugly. A large percentage of Arizona may be desert but I think deserts are beautiful; the soft, tan sand, the emerald cactuses, the fluttering tumbleweeds. Arizona is a gorgeous place but many people think the deserts cast a hideous look on Arizona.

Lastly, there is rarely any snow in Arizona, I despise the cold and the snow, the clouds that bring snow block the endless cerulean sky which is occasionly dotted with small white clouds. Snow is frigid and heartless, it has no mercy, it kills are never grieves. Snow is a cold, heartless ~~snow~~ soul. Luckily, Arizona is stripped of the snow but occasionally snow will come and litter the ground with its cold blanket of white.

In conclusion Arizona is a fine place to live in because it is warm all year round, is breathtakingly beautiful, and there is rarely any snow. As I gaze up at the clear azure sky my wet hair brushes across my back and I remember the plunging, I smile to myself at Arizona's breathtaking beauty. I can almost imagine that kind, scarlet sun gazing down on me, smiling.

South Dakota

There are very many place that I would like to visit but there is one state I would like to visit and that is South Dakota because of it's animals, Native Americans, and it's environment.

I would love to go to South Dakota for it's beautiful animals such as an elk for eating during hunting season. A little small animal that I would like to see is a hedgehog because whenever a predator is around it uses large needle to take the predator down. One really amazing animal in South Dakota is a deer because of it's really beautiful light brown texture.

There are very many types of Natives Americans in place like Pine Ridge which hold a tribe that is known as the Ogalala Sioux. They are known for taking over two states. They are skilled hunter an fisherman. The Tetons are really great sculptors but what they are known for is their religion like praying to the sun to keep their crops from dying. The Cheyenne tribe are skilled fishermens and they are known for going all the way to Florida and then going to Oklahoma to trade and returning back to South Dakota.

The environment would be beautiful around the forests, There are very many sites that I would like to go to such as Mt. Rushmore to see four of our greatest presidents that ever lived. I would really like to see the Crazy Horse monument that is not yet finished. I will be awesome to see a mountain that represents a Native American that was alive long ago. The environment would be so nice and just running through open feild would make me really happy. Seeing everything in South Dakota will make me happy.

So that is every reason why I would love to visit South Dakota. Let me just remind you all the reasons, I would love to be there because of it's animals, environment, and it's Native Americans. I hope you understand why I would love to visit South Dakota.

If I could visit any place, I would like to visit ~~Pate~~ Patzcuaro, Michoacan, Mexico. I would like to go there because of the food. One other reason I would like to go there is because of the culture. The last reason I would enjoy going there for is the sights.

In ~~Mexico~~ Patzcuaro they serve many types of food. From tasty tacos, to mouth watering enchiladas, to spicy Molé. Some people forget that Molé in Spanish means the same thing in ~~eng~~ English. It's just chicken with a ~~spicy~~ mild spicy sauce (with a hint of coco) poured over it served with red rice. ~~We~~ I also had some very strange foods too. Like "patitas de ~~puero~~ puerco", or pig feet. I wasn't so sure if I should eat it. I thought it was raw meat. But then I saw the jalepeño vinegar and lemon juice at the bottom. It tasted pretty good. Everything There ~~is~~ tastes good.

~~There~~ There is a lot of culture there too. There are hundreds of people around you. If you were in the central plaza on a warm Sunday morning you could hear the church bells ringing up the hill. Not many people are atheists (Most of them are Catholic). You can also hear the tapitty-tap of the traditional "Old Mans Dance." There is also a lot of myths in this town. Thats how much culture there is.

Finally I will tell you about the sights. There are many magnifacent sights to see. One of them is the "Plaza Grande" or the Grand Plaza. There is also the national park of Urapan. It has amazing waterfalls and trees.

There is a lot more to see in Patzcuaro. I will always cherish the sights, foods, and cultures of Patcuaro ~~mic~~ Michoacan. This is the place I want to visit. For all its beauty and splendor.
