

First, prairie dogs dig a door. Then, they dig tunnels, or places that to go to different rooms. One room is a listening room. Here, prairie dogs can listen for sounds that mean danger. Then, they build other rooms. They dig rooms for sleeping, eating, and storing food. Some even build a bathroom! Finally, prairie dogs build a door that goes back outside.