

Revising for Sensory Images Rubric

	3 Strong	2 Medium	1 Needs improvement
Visualization	This writing shows several examples of writing that allow the reader to visualize what the writer is trying to describe.	This writing shows a few examples of writing that allow the reader to visualize what the writer is trying to describe.	This writing shows no examples of writing that allow the reader to visualize what the writer is trying to describe.
Sensory Aspects	This writing shows several examples of writing that allow the reader to hear, touch, taste, or smell in their imagination what the writer is trying to describe.	This writing shows a few examples of writing that allow the reader to hear, touch, taste, or smell in their imagination what the writer is trying to describe.	This writing shows no examples of writing that allow the reader to hear, touch, taste, or smell in their imagination what the writer is trying to describe.
Overall Writing With Sensory Images	The sensory images in this writing make it “come alive” for the reader. This is a fun piece to read!	This author is making an attempt to use sensory images in their writing. This writing shows promise and with a little more revision will be fun to read!	This author has not used sensory details in their writing. This writing lacks interest and is hard for readers to connect to. This piece needs a lot of revision .
Conventions	The spelling and punctuation are correct in this writing. This makes the writing easy for others to read without becoming confused .	The spelling and punctuation are mostly correct in this writing. This makes the writing easy for others to read without becoming confused .	Much of the spelling and punctuation is not correct . This means readers have to work hard to figure out the writing. The readers will be confused .