

Annotated Bibliography

“What is Technology?” Nanooze. May 2007. Web. 10 March 2015. This 2007 Article is about Nanotechnology. Nanotechnology is actually the science or study of tiny particles called nanos that can improve the way we live and do things. It is meant to educate and inform the reader. It is written by researchers, teachers, and scientists. The article is extremely accurate, but it is written for children, which means that it can be biased and may not give the dangers of the science.

Shakespeare, William. “The Tragedy of Julius Caesar.” Elements of Literature,

Fourth Course. Chicago. Holt, Rinehart, and Winston, Inc. 1993. Then 3-4 sentences to summarize the source-what did it say? ; 3-4 sentences to evaluate the relevance; 1-2 sentences to evaluate the credibility of the source (bias, ethos, pathos, logos). Use the CRAAP Test!

Requirements:

Make sure ABC order!!

Double Space!

3 Annotated Bibs (Nano articles??)

The rest can be citation only: example: (Millennials and AI articles?)

“What is Technology?” Nanooze. May 2007. Web. 10 March 2015.