The tumbling flower beetle tumbles, or falls, to get away from a predator. It tumbles down from a plant to the ground.

The leaf roller weevil puts an egg inside a leaf. Then it can roll the leaf. The leaf helps hide and protect the egg.
Some beetles have bright colors. Their bright colors warn predators that the beetle will not taste good.

Some beetles have colors that help them to hide, or camouflage. These beetles can hide in flowers and plants.