National Geographic Book of Animal Poetry

Cocoon (pg. 11)
Haiku (pg. 13) Haiku Poem
Dear Orangutan (pg. 23)
Grandpa Bear’s Lullaby (pg. 25)
Elephant (pg. 26)
Ants (pg. 41)
Rich Lizard (pg. 49)
Riddle (pg. 56)
I Am a Snail (pg. 56)
I Talk With the Moon (pg. 63)
Anemone (pg. 86)
Beavers in November (pg. 91)
Sea Jelly (pg. 98)
Moray EEL (pg. 104)
All You Oughta Know About a Piranha (pg. 104)
The Anteater (pg. 111) Concrete Poem
Crickets (pg. 130)
Racoon (pg. 139)
Pet Snake (pg. 156)
Dressing Like a Snake (pg. 156)
I Saw a Sloth Play Soccer (pg. 160)

Blackout Poem
Acrostic Poems

ALL THE birds in the sky have an in-born feeling to travel.
Moody Guy

Boulders for shoulders,
Elegant horn—
A pointed reminder of the Unicorn,
Thick leg pillars bruising tawny
Yellow grass

In hope hide shoes,
Nobody argues

This is a colossal
Holdover from
Earth’s primeval swamp.

But
Even so, I know
A rhino when I
See one, and this is the time not
To.

Skunks are stinky,
Known for their stink,
Underground is where they live.
Northern Mexico is where some live.
Keen hunters is what they are.