Title: “Three Questions” by Leo Tolstoy

Beginning
The king wishes to be important and asks three questions. Many wise men give him answers, but the king knows none of them are correct.

Rising Action
The king goes to see a hermit for answers. The king helps the hermit with some digging but the hermit does not answer him.

Middle/ Climax
An injured man comes running. The king saves him. The injured man was an enemy of the king who wanted to kill him.

Falling Action
The injured man asks forgiveness and the king gives it. He also gives him land.

Resolution
The hermit tells the king that the most important time is right now, the most important person is the one in front of you, and the right thing to do is to be good to that person.
