

Mathematical Literacy and Inquiry: Meeting the CCSS

3 GRADUATE CREDITS - $596
(a nearly 40% reduction on graduate fees)
Presented by the
Boise State Writing Project
(An Affiliate of the National Writing Project)

Are you:

- Interested in how inquiry principles translate to classroom instruction?
- Looking for help in how to accomplish the Idaho Core Standards?
- Searching for meaningful strategies and activities that will engage students, promote understanding, and address multiple standards?

THIS INSTITUTE IS FOR YOU!!!!

The NWP is dedicated to:

- . . . the improvement of instruction in our nation's schools, particularly through the means of inquiry as a unique and powerful way of learning and knowing in all curricular areas.
- . . . the idea that teachers are professionals who must practice what they teach and must be paid for their expertise.
- . . . fostering an interdisciplinary community and support system of teachers from all grade levels and across the curriculum.

Who is teaching:

- Ramey Uriarte has been teaching mathematics and teachers for nineteen years. He is currently a Math Coach for the Boise School District. He is also a Boise State Writing Project Teacher Consultant.
- Jackie Miller has been teaching elementary school and teachers for eight years. She is currently a coach for the Idaho Core Coach Program for the Idaho State Department of Education. She is also a Boise State Writing Project Teacher Consultant.
- Rich Urquidi has been teaching secondary mathematics and teachers for twenty-five years. He is also a Boise State Writing Project Teacher Consultant.

When:

- Pre-Institute: Saturday April 30, 2016 at Boise State University SUB (tentative)
- The Institute: Monday June 13, 2016 – Friday June 17, 2016 on BSU campus
- Follow Up Meeting: There will then be one follow up session in the following year, to be arranged by the summer institute participants.
