

Starting the College Conversation

HELP YOUR STUDENTS TAKE THE FIRST STEP IN THEIR COLLEGE AND SCHOLARSHIP SEARCH BY OPTING INTO STUDENT SEARCH SERVICE

What is Student Search Service?

Colleges and scholarship organizations use Student Search Service® to look for students who might be a good fit for their program. Once students have opted in, colleges and scholarship programs can send them information by mail and email. Organizations pay College Board to use the service, but it's free for students.

Benefits for Students

- They can receive detailed information from colleges about majors, financial aid, scholarships, campus life, etc.
- They can discover college options, including colleges they may not have considered.
- They can hear from our scholarship partners who offer over $300 million in scholarships.

Data and Privacy

After your students opt in to the service, institutions use some of the information these students have shared on a College Board exam or on the College Board website to connect with them. Students can stop participating in Student Search Service any time. Once a student opts out, their information is no longer searchable, but organizations that have already received their information may continue to reach out. To stop hearing from these organizations completely, students can unsubscribe from communications directly on these organizations' websites.

Learn more at studentsearch.collegeboard.org.

Help Your Students Participate

Many students choose to opt in to Student Search Service while registering for a College Board exam, but students can opt in online at any time. It only takes a few easy steps:

- 1 Visit collegeboard.org.
- 2 Log in or create an account.
- 3 Click Student Search Service in the green College Planning menu in the middle of the page.

- 4 Click Yes in the blue bar at the top of the screen.

