STATE BOARD/TASK FORCE REPORT

Guest Marilyn Whitney, Deputy Superintendent, Communications and Policy provided an overview of the work of the Governor’s K-12 Education Task Force.

Task Force recommendations have not been finalized at this time, but committees are busy working to finalize those to bring forward by November 4, 2019.

The task force was organized around K-3 literacy and college and career readiness.

There are four committees:

- Rural and Underserved Committee
 - How do we help the districts share services and collaborate?
 - How do we help rural schools/areas with college and career readiness?
 - Start and participate in CTE programs (No recommendations yet on how to do that)
 - Insuring that all students have access to the support they need for college
 - All day kindergarten and early literacy
 - Many districts are moving to all-day kindergarten
 - Kindergarten is not mandatory in the state of Idaho
 - How do we ensure that all districts have the opportunity to offer all-day kindergarten if that is what they want?

The committees have had lots of discussion about pre-K and the state's role in that. Many districts are providing it through grants and local support. The committees have also had discussions on the opposite end, about moving the drop-out age to 18 and how we can keep kids in school, perhaps by giving them the opportunities for career-focused programs.

- Operations Committee

- School Safety
 - Would like to develop a certification program that would help schools implement safety; parents could be notified that the school has earned the certification
 - Looking into the standards for resource officers, knowing that not all schools have resource officers
 - Working on standardized emergency protocols to keep all schools across the state on the same page
- Facilities/Buildings
 - After discussion about how to better fund school facilities, and the local implications of such, the committee decided to give the issue back to the legislature to discuss
- Support and Wellness
 - How can the state provide support to our teachers, educators and staff around the needs of our students?
 - Social emotional learning for students and teachers
 - Discussion about mental health and self-awareness and how to best deliver what our educators need in these areas

- Teacher Pipeline Committee

- No recommendations have been made yet
- Master educator Premium
 - Unpopular program, not all best teachers are applying
 - How can we better provide reward and incentive to our veteran teachers without extensive work?
 - Possibly a third rung on the career ladder
 - Flash Financial bonuses to administrators to reward veteran teachers
 - Increased Salaries
- Ongoing professional development opportunities for teachers
 - Is the teacher evaluation the best tool for our veteran teachers to refine their practice?
 - Providing new and veteran teachers with mentors

- Budget Stability Committee

- History of K-12 funding over the last 10 years, during the recession and what has happened since then
 - Where the money has been focused and whether it has it been focused in the right places

- Cost of recommendations
- Looking at collapsing line items to provide districts with more flexibility. Hopes to not have money tied to so many specific things.
- More local control
- Continue to have room to invest in K-12 Education
- Revenue
 - The committee chair has brought in all the right people to talk about projected revenue, how is it coming in, how has it been spent in the past and how the state should be thinking about funding education moving forward

The Superintendent’s budget recommendation is on hold pending the outcomes of the committees. The entire task force will meet again on October 1, 2019; again, in the middle of October and the final meeting November 4, 2019.

This last legislative session, a funding formula data collection bill (HB293) passed that requires districts to report enrollment data. The Superintendent and staff are attending meetings across the state to determine the best way to report enrollment data for the purpose of an enrollment-based funding formula. Governor Otter’s 2013 Task Force had recommended moving from average daily attendance to enrollment, as well as the interim legislative committee. How do we collect that data without unintended consequences? There are still questions around economically disadvantaged and at-risk students that require clarification during the legislative session.

Career ladder:

Governor Little has created a task force to talk about what is next for the career ladder. There has been consensus that the funding should no longer be dumped into one pot going to the districts but retained, maintained, and improved.

COMMISSION MEMBER REPORTS

In hopes to open two-way communication between the full commission, the members and their constituency groups, each commission member is encouraged to share initiatives or other information from their associations and positive practices happening in their schools or district.

Kathy Davis shared that her district in the last year has expressed interest in educating staff members to become more familiar with ethics and violations to bring awareness of what those are and what the PSC does with that.

Mike Wilkinson shared that he was asked to provide ethics training for their new teachers at orientation. Also, that he is looking into further clarification on school counselors and their certifications.

Mark Haynal shared that Lewis-Clark State College approved a non-traditional teacher preparation program. Helping others like those who are retired from another profession get certification. He is proud of the uniqueness of the program. They insure that their teachers are prepped and mentored when they graduate and go into the fields, holding themselves to meet the standards equal to the traditional programs.

Topher Wallaert shared that Mountain Home school district kindergarten classes have shown major literacy growth. This is the first year that all day kindergarten is in place. And for the first time in over 12 years his building added on two teachers due to the community growth.

Steve Copmann shared that there was a devastating student suicide at his school last year. His school developed social and emotional wellness with the students, educating for behavioral health. The passionate people in their community and on their school, board started a program called “Connect” starting with $80,000 in donations. They are now up to $200,000 from donations and thriving. Any student has access to wellness counseling at no cost. There are currently 29 counselors that are in the connect program, delivering tremendous results. They are meeting with local legislators and going to national committees in hopes to further this program to benefit the emotional standing of the students.

Elisa Saffle shared that her district created the “Hope Squad”, to help prevent student suicide. Teaching the students to recognize differences and changes in their peers. They have also offered ethics training to all the teachers through Google Classroom and every teacher in her building has been trained on ethics this year.

Peter McPherson shared about the Superintendent of Public Instruction (SOBI) budget. He stated that the Superintendent asked for a 3.5% increase in the education budget. The bulk of that increase will go towards the career ladder and supporting the growth in Idaho. He reported that Ybarra stated that she has reserved the right to change her budget, even though she has not done so in years past. There have been personnel changes at the director level at the State Department of Education. Student Engagement added Dr. Eric Studebaker to replace Matt Carter, and Content and Curriculum added Todd Driver replace Kelly Brady. Some top priorities of the Superintendent are school safety and social-emotional support.

Charlotte McKinney shared about the Master Educator Premium and that she is proud of the level of teachers that we have here in Idaho. The portfolios she was able to review were amazing.

She believes that we do amazing things and we are a great entity and our teachers are doing great work.

Iris Chimburas shared that she has been a teacher over 20 years, assisting with student behavior plans and this is her first year as Dean of Students. She is learning a lot about historical trauma for Native American students and as Dean created a Student Code of Conduct. The document is built upon empowerment and is for preventative purposes, it is not a disciplinary action. Another goal of hers is to get more elders into the school. This is a hard task because of historical trauma in their community. She hopes to revamp the community's views so that they feel comfortable to spend time in the school and provide each teacher with a community mentor. The tribes general counsel and created an action plan for a culturally responsive department, they present to the community on a regular basis. This school year has been fantastic, so much extra support and the students are really enjoying school.

Clara Allred shared that a student teacher who was learning about educator ethics reached out to her to find out how she could get more involved, and in the future, continue her ethics education. She also shared that she spoke with another student teacher who was denied by a school district for her student teaching placement. Clara felt frustrated by this as the state of Idaho is working on better teacher retention, so we shouldn't be turning teachers down for a learning experience.

Kristi Enger shared that the CTE administrator announced retirement. They could be under new leadership come mid-November. The Inspire Cohort had 67 teachers graduate that went through the two-year cohort. They had two sessions of summer academy "boot camp" training for individuals prior to going on to the Inspire program. They had 63 participants in August and another 24 in September. Out of those 40 people are going forward into Inspire.

Mark Gorton shared that Idaho Ed News released an article announcing that Mountain View Alternative school is the best in the state.

Jennifer Snow shared in regards to Idaho Association of Colleges of Teacher Education (IACTE), stating that the education deans are getting more engaged in the rule making process, inspiring her with their dedication. She shared that Boise State University has all their faculty trained in suicide prevention and there is a new certified trainer that has agreed to train every semester for new teachers and support student teachers, empowering them to get the training and be certified.

Lisa Colón Durham shared that she had a school district reach out and request an all-district training on the code of ethics. The superintendent of the school brought in every single employee including support staff, cooks and custodial. The training was very well received. There are opportunities for districts to utilize the SDE Certification and Professional Standards department for trainings.
