Supt. Ybarra visits Twin Falls for classroom visits, conference

Superintendent of Public Instruction Sherri Ybarra will be in Twin Falls Thursday, Sept. 30, to visit classrooms and to speak at her department's 2021 Conference on Connecting Assessment and Instruction.

At 9 a.m., Superintendent Ybarra will welcome school and district employees to the conference in the Fine Arts Auditorium of the College of Southern Idaho, 315 Falls Avenue. At 10, she'll head out to Twin Falls High School to meet up with 2021 Teacher of the Year Jorge Pulliero and House Education Committee Chairman Lance Clow, R-Twin Falls. Plans call for them to visit an American Government class at 10:45 a.m. and a History class at 11:10 a.m.

Media members are welcome at the school visit, and there will be opportunities to talk to the superintendent. Please check in at the school office when you arrive.

The Conference on Connecting Assessment and Instruction is a roadshow of sorts, designed to connect local school district and charter school test coordinators, curriculum directors and special education directors with experts from the State Department of Education. Sessions will focus on literacy, science and math content, as well as special education and English language proficiency data. The conference launched last week in Boise and will visit Idaho Falls Wednesday before heading to Twin Falls. Daylong sessions in Coeur d'Alene and Moscow are planned for next week.

Feel free to call or email me if you have any questions.
